ANTI-BILIOUS DANDELION COFFEE

SERVES A DOUBLE PURROSE.

1st. It is a most delicious beverage as a substitute for tea and coffee.

2nd. It is also the best Medicine in use. The use of it as a beverage cures HEADACHE, BILIOUSNESS, CONSTIPATION, and cases of DYSPEPSIA of over 20 years' standing.

It is also the very best remedy for disease of the Liver and Kidneys. It contains no Drugs, is perfectly harmless, so that children and invalids may use it freely.

It differs from Drugs in that it nourishes, invigorates and builds up the most delicate constitution.

It is to every one's interest to use it. It is appreciated by every class, including the most eminent of the medical profession.

DESCRIPTIVE OF NEW BRUNSWICK.

New Brunswick, a maritime and east Province of the Dominion, bounded N.-W. by Quebec, from which it is separated by the Restigouche river, W. by the State of Maine (U.S.), E. by the Gulf of St. Lawrence, S. and S.-E. by the Bay of Fundy and Nova Scotia. Greatest length N. to S. 210 miles, breadth 180 miles, area 27,124 sq. miles. The largest of the Maritime Provinces. Population (1881) 321,233. The surface of the province, which is intersected by numerous navigable rivers is generally very undulating, although it is nowhere (except in the N.) of a strictly mountainous character. The hills range from 500 feet, in the W., to 500 and 800 in the N., and are clad with lofty forest trees almost to their summits, and surrounded by fertile valleys and table lands. There is not a country in the world so beautifully wooded and watered. An inspection of the map will show that there is scarcely a section of it without its streams, from the running brook to the navigable river. Two-thirds of its boundary is washed by the sea; the remainder is embraced by the large rivers, the St. John and Restigouche. For beauty and richness of scenery, this latter river and its branches are nowhere surpassed. In the capability of growing all the common crops on which man and beast mainly depend, the whole Province of New Brunswick taken together exceeds even the favored Genesee Valley. At the London and Paris Exhibitions, New Brunswick took the first prize for oats, the weight being fifty-seven pounds to the bushel. An eminent authority, the late Archbishop Connolly, of Nova Scotia, in speaking of New Brunswick, said: "He had spent years in Italy, had been twice in France, he knew every county in Ireland, and had seen most of England and many other countries; but he never saw any other country teeming with greater abundance of everything necessary for the sustenance of man; no country more highly endowed by Providence with beauty and fertility than New Brunswick appeared to him to be, when on his visitation. During the summer season he travelled through various districts, and saw on every side fields of potatoes and corn and vegetables, such as could be nowhere exceeded, and the people in a corresponding degree comfortable, happy and independent." In common with the Maritime Provinces generally, New Brunswick is free from endemical diseases. Of the whole average of this Province 14,000,000 acres are set down as good land, and 3,600,000 acres as poor land. The crown lands are at present being disposed of under the Act of 1868, which provides that certain portions of eligible lands shall be reserved for actual settlers and not be disposed of to speculators or for lumbering purposes. By Act of 1872, a single man obtains 100 acres and a married man with children, 200 acres. A house must be built and some land cultivated within three years, when he receives a present of thirty dollars from the Government. A large portion of the Province is occupied by carboniferous strata. The mineral coal is for the most part impure and in thin seams, and is hardly worked; but the so-called albertite of Albert county is the most valuable of bituminous matter on the American continent. This coal widely differs, both in its position and properties, from any of the other varieties found in the United States or Canada. It yields one hundred gallons of crude oil per ton. Copper and iron ore are found, as are also antimony and manganese. Gypsum, plumbago and limestone are very abundant, and the freestone of the Province, unsurpassed for beauty and durability, commands a high price in the United States. Salt springs are numerous.

The favorable maritime position of New Brunswick, with her wealth of forests, has always largely led to the interest of shipbuilding. The supply of vessels for the seal and other fisheries of Newfoundland, for the transport of deals and lumber to Great Britain, and for the Labrador and other fisheries of the Provinces, together with the coasting trade between this country and the United States, affords employment for a large amount of tonnage. The sailing qualities of New Brunswick built vessels have not yet been exceeded, and the high state of perfection to which her artisans have brought this branch of business, is certainly very creditable to them. The interior of the Province is literally a network of streams, thereby affording abundant facilities for the transportation of materials to the shipyards. The description of timber generally used are spruce, birch, maple, ash, oak, elm, beech and hacmatak. Ships built of the latter are the most durable and safe. Hacmatak is found in great abundance along the margins of lakes, rivers, meadows, swamps and other alluvial lands; the other kinds are met with plentifully in almost all parts of the Province. New Brunswick has, therefore, always been eminent as a ship-building country, and in every port her ships have a well-known character for strength, durability, workmanlike finish and model.

The operations of the lumberer are chiefly carried on along the shores and on the banks of the numerous rivers of the Province. Almost all the rivers and creeks in the Province present facilities for lumbering operations, but they are carried on to the greatest extent on the St. John, the Miramichi, the rivers falling into the Bay of Chaleur, and their tributaries. The forests of New Brunswick are almost inexhaustible, and the lumbering interests form an important factor in the wealth of the Province.

Chief, however, among the resources of New Brunswick are the fisheries. There is probably no part of the world in which such extensive and valuable fisheries are to be found as within the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Nature has bountifully provided within its waters the utmost abundance of those fishes which are of the greatest importance to man, as affording not only nutritious and wholesome food, but also the means of profitable employment. It is claimed that the deep sea and river fisheries of the Maritime Provinces of Canada are admittedly superior to all others in America, and from them the markets of the United States, the West Indies and South America are largely supplied. The finest salmon, cod, mackerel, herring and shad fisheries in the world can be prosecuted within sight of the shores of New Brunswick; and her inland waters teem with trout and salmon. The value of the fisheries of this Province has within the last six years almost doubled, and last year amounted to over $4,000,000.

The principal river is the St. John, which is 450 miles in length, and flows through the Province for a distance of 225 miles. It is navigable for steamers of large size eighty-four miles from the sea to Fredericton; and the steamers running between St. John and Fredericton almost equal in magnificence those splendid boats that ply on the great American rivers. Above Fredericton steamers ply to Woodstock, about seventy miles farther; and, when the water is high, make occasional trips to Tobique, a further distance of fifty miles, sometimes reaching Grand Forks, a distance of 220 miles from the sea. The Miramichi is a large river, navigable for vessels of 1,000 tons for twenty-five miles from its mouth; for schooners, twenty miles farther, and above this point it is further navigable for sixty miles for ton boats. The Restigouche is a noble river, three miles wide at its mouth at the Bay of Chaleur, and is navigable for large vessels for eighteen miles. This river and tributaries drain about 4,000 miles of territory, abounding in timber and other valuable resources. Other rivers navigable for large vessels are the Richibucto, the Petitcodiac and the St. Croix.

It is said that New Brunswick has the greatest number of miles of railway in proportion to population of any country in the world; some 500 miles being operated in the Province, while around the coasts and along the banks of the rivers there are excellent public and coach roads.

The educational facilities of New Brunswick, as elsewhere in the Dominion, are remarkable for the facility with which they may be made use of by the poorest of the population. There are supported by law a Provincial University and Training or Normal School for teachers, and a system of common schools ranging from the Primary to the Grammar or High Schools.

The chief cities of the Province are St. John and Fredericton. The former was so named by Champlain, in 1604, in honor of the day, that of Saint John, the Baptist, when he entered the harbor. St. John is the commercial capital of the Province, and is a thriving port and mercantile centre.

The coast is indented with numerous bays, the chief of which are the Baie des Chaleurs in the N.E.; Miramichi, Shediac and Baie Verte in the E.; Chignecto and Passamaquoddy Bays in the S. There are numerous lakes, mostly of small extent; the chief of them are Grand Lake, which is 30 miles long and from 2 to 7 miles broad; and Washedemoak Lake, about 20 miles long and two miles broad. The soil is one of extreme fertility, and produces all the cereals and fruits grown in Britain, with perhaps the exception of peaches. Much of the surface is densely wooded, the varieties of trees, including pine, spruce, cedar, etc., thus affording abundance of excellent material for shipbuilding, which forms one of the staple industries of the Province. Its harbors are open all the year round, and its interminable network of navigable rivers, by which the country can everywhere be penetrated, affords excellent means for transporting the products of the interior to the sea-board. In addition, it possesses an admirable system of railways and wagon roads. Coal is found in abundance, and the other minerals include copper, manganese, plumbago, gypsum, limestone, freestone, etc. The principal manufactures of the Province are sawn lumber, leather, cotton and woolen goods, paper, iron castings, nails, steam engines, mill machinery, etc. Among the imports are wheat, flour, corn, cornmeal, coffee, tea, sugar, molasses, tobacco, fruits, cotton, woolen and silk manufactures, etc. The chief exports are fish, timber, coal, iron, gypsum, hay, etc. This Province is situated between 45° and 48° 7′ N lat.; and between 63° 50′ and 69° w long. The climate varies from extreme heat to cold; the temperature in the interior ranges from 92° Fah. in summer to 18° below zero in winter. The climate on the coast of the Bay of Fundy is milder and less subject to extremes of heat and cold than that of the interior, but it is everywhere salubrious. Observations taken at St. John during 1882 showed a mean temperature during January, the coldest month, of 18.1°, as against 59.3° during August, the hottest month. The mean annual temperature was 39.78°; mean barometrical reading, 29.97 inches; total rainfall, 35.70 inches; total snowfall, 158.7 inches. New Brunswick is divided into 15 counties, viz: Albert, Carleton, Charlotte, Gloucester, Kent, Kings, Northumberland, Queens, Restigouche, St. John, Sunbury, Victoria, Westmorland, York and Madawaska. The government is carried on by a Lieutenant-Governor, assisted by an Executive Council of 9 members, a Legislative Council of 18 members, and a House of Assembly of 41 representatives. The Province originally (along with Nova Scotia) formed part of Acadia, and was first settled by the French in 1639.

The country was discovered in 1498 by Sebastian Cabul. In 1784 it became a separate province. The first settlers were brought out by De Monts, in 1604, but not until 1764 did the first Britisher, Mr. Wm. Davidson, arrive, he was from the north of Scotland, up to which time not a single house was in existence. The Micmac Indians controlled everything. Col. Carleton was appointed the first governor in 1785, which position he held for twenty years; after his departure, and up to 1817, the government was administered by Presidents. In 1785 the first general election took place, and in 1786 the first Legislative Assembly met in St John. About this time, when the United States gained their independence, about 5,000 of the exiled loyalists emigrated to New Brunswick and were supplied with land, clothing, etc., by the British Government; these are looked upon as the founders of the Province. In 1783 the first newspaper was published. In 1825, when the country was in a most flourishing condition, a terrible conflagration occurred through the sudden appearance of forest fires, sweeping over 6,000 square miles, wiping out several of the best towns, destroying many lives, and over $1,000,000 worth of property. Again, in 1837, St John met with a loss of over $1,000.000 through fire, since which time the colony, however, has advanced rapidly in wealth and importance. In 1848 responsible government was established, but not until 1866 did the province join the federation.

St John. The leading city and commercial metropolis of New Brunswick, is situated on a rocky peninsula, on the left bank of the River St John, and in St John Co, of which it is the co seat. In the past, St John has been visited by several large fires, that of 1877 alone destroying fully two-fifths of the city, and damaging property to the amount of over $27,000,000. Since that time large and handsome structures have replaced the old ones, and St John, to-day, with its unexcelled harbour, stands as one of the finest cities in Canada. It contains Epis, Meth, Pres, Bap and Cath churches, many large public schools, five chartered banks, saw, grist and woolen mills, foundries and machine shops, boot and shoe, carriage and furniture factories, 5 chartered banks and 4 daily newspapers, the Globe, the Sun, the Telegraph and the Gazette (the 3 former publishing weekly editions), 2 weekly, the Progress and the Messenger and Visitor, and 1 monthly, the Gripsack. It has daily steamboat connection with Eastport, Me, and Boston, Mass, and also to Moncton, Digby, Yarmouth and Halifax. It is the terminus of different railroads, viz: the IC, SL and NBR, which give it excellent facilities for rapid transportation of its products. A large business is done in ship-building. Distance from Quebec 577 mls, and from Halifax 275. Pop, 38,110. Tel, GNW and CPR. Exp, Dom and Can. Mail daily. Edward Willis, p m.

A Representative Assembly was first granted to this Colony in 1832, under the Govenorship of Sir THOMAS COCHRANE. By the Constitution nine Districts were established, returning fifteen members, who were to hold their seats during His Majesty's pleasure. In 1836 the members of the Assembly were elected for four years, and this term has been adhered to since that date.

In 1854, upon the granting of Responsible Government, the number of the members was increased, at the instance of the Imperial Government, to thirty. In 1874 the membership was further increased to thirty-one, by the addition of one member to the number of those representing the District of Twillingate and Fogo.

In 1882 the number of members was increased to thirty-three, by the erection of St. George and St. Barbe into Districts, with one member each. In 1885, after the publication of the Census of 1884, a partial re-distribution took place. The District of Twillingate and Fogo was divided, Twillingate retaining three members, Fogo was given one. Bay-de-Verde, which was made to include a part of Trinity District, was allowed an additional member, as was also Harbor Grace. These alterations increased the number of members to thirty-six.

DESCRIPTIVE OF NEWFOUNDLAND.

NEWFOUNDLAND was discovered by Sebastian Cabot in 1497, is the oldest of the colonial possessions of Great Britain and forms the key to her dependencies in North America. It is a large island, situated in the North Atlantic Ocean, triangular in shape 317 miles long by 316 broad, and containing an area of about 40,000 sq. miles contiguous to the eastern coast of the continent of America and between the parallels of 46° 37 and 31° 39 North Latitude and the Meridians of 52° 37 and 59° 25 West Longitude. It is bounded on the East and South by the Atlantic Ocean, on the West and North by the Gulf of St Lawrence, and the Strait of Belleisle separating it on the North by the coast of Labrador. It contains a sea coast of nearly 2,000 miles, frequented by shoals of fish, for which the country has been famous since its discovery. It is very irregular in form, and is everywhere indented with deep bays and inlets, the most important being Hare, White, Notre Dame, Bonavista, Trinity, and Conception Bays, and Bay of Exploits on the E. coast; St. Mary's, Fortune and Placentia Bays on the S. coast; and St. George's Bay and Bay of Islands on the W. coast. The principal capes are, Bauld, on the N.; Race, on the S.E.; and Ray, on the S.W. The country abounds in lakes and ponds, whence issue numerous rivers; the main streams are the Humber, Exploits, and Gander rivers. The Atlantic cables terminate at Heart's Content, a small cove in Trinity Bay. The chief lakes are Deer Pond, Grand Pond, Gander Pond and Red Indian Pond. The coast line is bold and rocky, and the surface for the most part flat in the E. and mountainous in the W.; the interior has never been thoroughly explored. The prevailing geological formation is granite, with porphyry, quartz, gneiss. mica and clay-slate in some parts, with secondary and carboniferous formations. Among the minerals found are silver, copper, lead, iron, plumbago, manganese, gypsum, limestone, coal, marble, etc. The trees principally grown in Newfoundland are spruce, birch, larch, willow, ash and fir. Clover and grasses grow in abundance. There are the deer, the wolf, the bear, the beaver, the marten and wild cat among the wild animals to be found; and the country is celebrated for its peculiar breed of dogs. The coasts abound in whales, seals and porpoises; and its Grand Banks swarm with cod and many other kinds of fish. Winter generally lasts from December till April, and the summer is warm and of short duration. The mean annual temperature is 40°, the coldest month being February with a temperature of 22° and the hottest month July with a temperature of 60°. Dense fogs, caused by the meeting of the cold ice-current from the N. with the warm Gulf Stream from the S., settle on the Banks between the month of May and the beginning of June. The government of the colony is vested in a Governor, an Executive Council of 6 members, a Legislative Council of 13 members, and a Legisiative Assembly of 33 representatives. Newfoundland has not yet joined the Dominion, and is treated as a separate colony. The inhabitants are engaged chiefly in the fisheries or agriculture, but ship-building is also carried on to a considerable extent. The total value of imports in 1887 was £1,079,481; and of exports £1,035,346. The principal imports are articles of food and clothing; and the chief exports are dried cod, cod-oil, seals, sealskins, etc. The principal means of communication are steamers and open sail-boats.

The Bays and Inlets of the shore are the seats of a busy and increasing population, contributing to the commerce of the world.

The first effort at colonization was made early in the fifteenth century, but not being encouraged by the English Government, in fact more or less retarded, little progress was made in this direction until 1728 when the first Governor, Captain Henry Osborne, was appointed, when Newfoundland became a distinct province and surrogate courts, etc., were established. At this time the population did not exceed 5,000. It has, however, since slowly but steadily increased, and is now about 200,000.

In 1766 the first Custom House was opened and the first Post Office in 1805. The following year, 1806, the Royal Gazette, the first newspaper, was established.

In 1811 authority was given for the erection of the first houses on the island.

The first communication by cable with Europe was in 1858.

In 1832 a representative assembly was granted to the colony, comprising 15 members, the Legislative Council consisting of 9 members. In 1843 the House of Assembly was incorporated with the Council and called the Amalgamated Assembly of Newfoundland. It consisted of 25 members. In 1847 this form of government was set aside and the two houses met separately. In 1854 the Electoral districts were re-arranged and the number of the Assembly increased, the Executive and Legislative Councils were separated and responsible government fully established. The House of Assembly now consists of 36 members representing 18 districts.

The first school on the Island was erected in 1803. The system is denominational and there is ample facilities for the education of the youth. There are now 525 schools under the different educational school boards, with an average attendance of 26,280, and employing 520 teachers as follows :

In addition to the above there are several colleges, academies, grammar and training schools, also several private schools. The total grant from the government for educational purposes is about $120,000 annually.

St. John's is surrounded with an atmosphere to which the Union Jack has lent its peculiar flavor.

This strange and interesting island ought to be of great service to Americans. It certainly would be if they knew more about it. If they knew how distinct and individual are its charms, how unlike its people, its climate, its vegetation, its scenery and its manners and customs to those of the United States and what a perfect change of conditions can be had by a journey of a thousand miles from the heat and dust and humidity and hurry and strife and vexation of New York to the bright, clear skies, the dashing seas, the sublime coasts and untenanted wildernesses of this oldest and newest Western land. It is a change which puts brightness into one's eyes and energy into one s muscles. It furnishes another endorsement of the scheme of the creation. The existence of such places as New York renders such places as Newfoundland absolutely necessary.

Nature's fancy was actively at work when this island was erected. Its coastline is an expression of her most erratic humors, and she has surrounded it with conditions of sea and air which add immensely to the strange sentiments it suggests. At all times its general appearance is wild and bleak, but this effect is profoundly heightened when it is viewed across a raging sea and through a dismal fog. Sights that may be grand are then supremely awful. Cliffs that may be noble take on hideous shapes, and stand trembling in the mist like guilty spectres. In these summer months the winds are soft and only gratefully cooling, the sea rolls peacefully, and the fogs are withdrawn. Even then the picture is characterized by a sombre majesty which is not the less impressive because it is seen through a crystal atmosphere. Long stretches of lofty granite rock constantly engage the eye as you glide swiftly through the ocean. Their base is ever fringed with the white ermine of the breaking sea Their summit, lifted into peaks of nature's noblest architecture, stands in defiant strength against the cerulean sky.

These grim effects are not to be found along our sandy coasts. They have all the interest of novelty to an American. They are much heightened by closer inspection. One does not need a very poetic temperament to have his interest fastened and his imagination excited by the weird beauty of a Newfoundland harbor and the solemn grandeur of a Newfoundland mountain. The scene is one that cannot be resisted. It takes forcible possession of the intellect. To stand upon one of these colossal piles of hoary rock and to look out upon the restless sea, with its fleets of timid craft and of magnificent icebergs : to look down where it rolls and dashes and breaks and surges against the unyielding cliff in a conflict resultless but unceasing ; to look back upon the land, strewn with glacial drift, now dipping into narrow ravines, now stretching away into gentle meadow, now rising into lofty hills, wrapped in their dark mantles of fir ; to look through the narrow passes of the sea into still harbors, around which cluster the little cottages of the fishermen snugly ensconced among the rocks—to watch the strange and varied picture, touched as it is with a thousand colors, bright, gloomy, dull and gay, is an experience of infinite delight.

Newfoundland, although it was discovered only three years after Columbus landed at San Salvador, although it was annually resorted to by the fishing fleets of four European nations as soon as it was known to exist, although it was colonized by so early an adventurer as Sir Humphrey Gilbert, although it was the first scene of Lord Baltimore's colonial enterprise, and although it has had a permanent population for more than a century, is yet to-day an unknown land. Only its coast line has been thoroughly explored. Its interior remains a wilderness of mysteries. This seems, on the surface, to be a very extraordinary fact, for the island's area is about 42,000 square miles.

The story is told in a single sentence—they are a fishing people, and a fishing people will not be persuaded or forced into doing anything but fishing. But one man has actually crossed the island. He occupied three months in his journey, and he told many remarkable stories when he got back. Reindeer, bears and birds are the only inhabitants. Probably in no other part of America are caribou so numerous or so easily hunted. They are to be found in large bands and are frequently encountered within a dozen miles of the coasts. But fishermen do not hunt caribou. They are not interested in geographical research. They will not till the soil. They are content to abide by their luck in the fishery.

This state of affairs, and most naturally, has had unfortunate results upon the colony's material interests. No people who depend upon a single interest for their livelihood can be sure of prosperity. There inevitably come seasons when the harvest is scant and the market profitless. Fishermen, when engaged in their business, have no end of work, worry and danger to endure and confront. They begin their operations two hours before the sun rises and continue them along after he sets. When they get back to land they have but one demand—relaxation and rest. This invites a social system which contributes to their misery. Their merry-go-lucky, thriftless life places them, if they are honest, at the mercy of the merchants, and if they are dishonest it places the merchant at the mercy of them A fishing outfit is an expensive affair. Even coastwise fishing requires good boats and costly tackle, and a voyage to the banks is an event that requires vast preparations. For all this the fisherman runs in debt—and for much more. He generally deals through a "planter" with a merchant. The merchants are all in St. John's. They are wealthy, aristocratic people and they live handsomely. Their homes are rarely pretentious in appearance, but their silver is silver, and from the moment you enter their door you are impressed with the fact that everything is substantial and genuine.

The merchants entertain with lavish hospitality. They have the finest wines on earth and the choicest cigars. Their favorite wine is port. It seems to mature in the cold, damp climate of Newfoundland and gradually to acquire a flavor that is simply exquisite. If you are promptly and involuntarily impressed with this fact you acquire a distinction which is of not a slight social advantage. It appears to justify the Newfoundlander in giving you his confidence and he grows immediately friendly. I would not imply that he lacks cordiality for its own sake. In his home he is as gracious and delightful as a man could be. There is a quality of smoothness, if I may call it so, which is exceeding restful in the household of the St. John's merchant.

The merchant sells everthing from a shoestring to a fishing schooner. He generally occupies two or three buildings and carries enormous stocks of goods. He deals in the "out-ports," or fishing villages lying along the coast, through "planters." These constitute a sort of middle-class in the social organization of Newfoundland. Their name does not describe them clearly to American minds. It does not imply that they have an agricultural function. In other lands they might be called brokers, or retailers, or factors. They keep little stores in their various villages and they supply the fisherman with everthing. He procures through their agency his boat, his tackle, his salt, his drying sheds and stages, and all that his family consumes day by day. All this is bought on credit and paid for from his catch. If he doesn't catch he frequently doesn't pay, so that the merchant is compelled to run a variety of risks, and, consequently, to charge exorbitant prices. The fishermen are kept in various degrees of anxiety, all bordering on the intense. This credit system is a great injury to Newfoundland.

St John's. The capital, is beautifully situated on the western shore of the peninsula of Avalon, 60 mls n-e of Cape Race. It has an excellent harbor, which is accessible to the largest vessel on the ocean, and is perfectly sheltered on both sides by two ranges of hills, which, on the s s, rise to a height exceeding 500 feet, and extend the whole length of the harbor of over a mile. The city is built on the sloping ground of the n s for the full length of the harbor. The chief street is Water, which adjoins and runs parallel with the harbor; on it are situated all the wharves, offices, stores and shops of importance.

The Catholic cathedral stands on the summit of the hill and has a commanding appearance, and the Ch of England cathedral, which is situated on Gower street, is also a fine structure. The churches are, in general, handsome specimens of architectural skill, and number, with the two cathedrals, 11, viz: 3 Epis, 2 Rom Cath, 4 Meth, 1 Pres and 1 Cong.

The school system is denominational. The Ch of England has a theological college for training candidates for the ministry endowed with $50,000, and an academy with a roll of 140 pupils and 7 teachers, and 5 other schools with 1,302 pupils and 5 principal teachers and a staff of assistants.

The Catholics have St Bonaventure College, which is in charge of the Christian Brothers, and has 97 pupils and 5 teachers, and 4 convent schools with 1,407 pupils and 34 teachers.

In addition to these there are the General Protestant Academy with 132 pupils, 1 principal and 3 assistant teachers; the Meth College with 220 pupils, 1 principal and 5 assistant teachers; the Cong Training School with 60 pupils, 1 principal and 3 assistant teachers, and 4 Meth schools with 336 pupils, 4 principal and 3 assistant teachers. All of these are subsidised by the Government.

Among the public buildings may be noted: Government House, a substantial and spacious building erected in 1828 by the Imperial Government; the Colonial Building, erected in 1847; the Athenæum, which contains a public hall, fitted up for concert and public meeting purposes, and seats over 800 people, a subscription reading room and library with 5,000 volumes, and a Government Savings Bank; St Patrick's Hall, which is also used for concert and public meeting purposes, and seats over 600 people; the post office, a handsome structure on the w end of Water street, erected in 1885, which contains a museum; the St John's Hospital; the Insane Asylum; the Masonic Hall, which can also be used for public meeting and ball room purposes, and seats over 800 people, and the Star of the Sea Hall, which is fitted up for theatrical purposes and seats over 600 people.

There are 2 Banks, the Union and Commercial, 3 daily newspapers, the Herald, the Telegram and the Colonist; 3 bi-weeklies, the Times, the Advocate and the Patriot, and 1 weekly, the Royal Gazette.

It contains a rope walk and twine factory, 4 tanneries, a nail factory and rolling mill, 2 butterine factories, 3 biscuit factories, 2 breweries, 2 boot and shoe factories, 2 foundries and machine shops, 3 furniture factories, a sash and door factory, a stove factory, 2 tobacco factories and a soap factory, in addition to which there are 6 seal oil refineries, 1 cod liver oil refinery and a patent fish drying factory, situated on the s s of the harbor.

There is a large graving dock 600 feet in length, 132½ feet in width of body, 85 feet in width at entrance, and giving a draught of water over sill of 25 feet. In addition t which there is a small floating dock on the s s of the harbor, which is capable of taking up vessels to 200 tons register.

The assessed valuation of real and personal property within the city limits is $810,000, and the bonded indebtedness, $500,000.

Codfish, herring, salmon, seal and cod oil and copper ore are the chief exports.

The city is lighted by electricity and gas and has an excellent water supply and fire department.

The Anglo-American Tel Co connects the cables to England and the North-American continent and the various towns and villages of importance on the island. There is telephone connection around the city.

The Nfld Ry Co has a line of railway running up to Harbor Grace, 84½ mls n, and a government ry connects Harbor Grace Junc, 27 mls s of Harbor Grace, with Placentia, 26 mls s of that point. Another government ry connecting Harbor Grace Junc with Hall's Bay, 270 mls n, will be commenced this year.

During the season of navigation, viz, from the end of April to the end of January, St John's has connection by steamboat with Halifax, Montreal, England, and all northern and western ports fortnightly, the Montreal boats touching at Charlottetown, PEI, Cow Bay and North Sydney, CB. Distance from Halifax 488 mls, from Charlottetown 498, from North Sydney 354, from New York 1,293, and from Liverpool 1,921. Pop, 29,500. Tel, Anglo-American. Mail Daily.

DESCRIPTIVE OF NOVA SCOTIA.

The most easterly province of the Dominion of Canada consists of a long peninsula, connected by an isthmus 16 miles wide (with the Province of New Brunswick) and of Cape Breton Island, separated from the main land by the Gut of Canso. It is washed on the S.-E. by the Atlantic and on the N.-W. by the Bay of Fundy and on the N. by the Gulf of St. Lawrence and Northumberland Strait, the latter separating it from Prince Edward Island. The surface of the Province is diversified by hills and broad valleys running from E. to W. throughout its length, which is about 300 mls, breadth 80 to 100 mls and area 21,751 sq miles.

The Cobequid Mountains in the N. attain to 1,200 feet in height. The coasts are indented by numerous bays and commodious harbors, there being no fewer than 26 ports for large vessels on the S.-E. coast alone. The principal lakes Rossignol, 20 mls long, Ship Harbor, 15 mls long, Grand and College lakes. None of the rivers of the Province are of great size, but most of them are navigable for coasting vessels for distances varying from 2 to 20 miles. Chief among them are the Shubenacadie, the Avon and the Annapolis falling into the Bay of Fundy and the St. Mary's, Musquo do boit, La Have and Liverpool which drain to the Atlantic.

Minas Basin terminating in Cobequid Bay and running 60 mls inland forms the east arm of the Bay of Fundy. The more important bays are St. George and Chedabucto on the East, St. Mary's and Townsend on the West, and St. Margaret's and Mahone bays on the S.-E. coast. The geological formations are carboniferous, and a new red sandstone resting on granite and metamorphic rocks. Coal abounds, and in some places is found cropping out along the shore. Among other minerals are gold, of which some 58 mines are in working order; iron ore, silver, lead, copper, zinc, tin, manganese, plumbago, gray granite (suitable for mill stones), sandstone (for making grindingstones), granite, marble, limestone, gypsum, clay slate (for hones), etc. Opal, topaz, amethyst, garnet, cairngorm, agate, jasper, heliotrope, and chalcedony stones are also among the minerals of the province. The climate of Nova Scotia is remarkably salubrious, and considering its northern and insular position is very temperate. Observations taken at Halifax during 1882, showed a mean temperature of 21·5° during January, the coldest month, as against 64·4° during August, the hottest month. The mean annual temperature was 42·3°; the mean barometrical reading 29·99 inches; the total rainfall, 48·81 inches; and the total snowfall 133·7 inches. The most delightful season of the year is the autumn. At certain seasons fogs are prevalent along the Atlantic coast. The greater portion of the soil is fertile, and along the W. coast, where the Bay of Fundy has left its rich marine deposits, it is extremely productive. Wheat, rye, oats, barley, buckwheat, Indian corn and other cereals are largely cultivated. Beets, carrots, parsnips, beans, peas, squash, pumpkins, melons, tomatoes, etc., are raised in large quantities. Rich crops of hay, timothy grass and clover are also grown. The apple orchards of Annapolis and King's Cos. are very extensive, and all kinds of small fruits flourish. The fisheries of Nova Scotia are very valuable, the total value of their produce for 1887 being 8,379,783 dols. The varities include cod, mackerel, herring, salmon and lobsters. Of wild animals the province possesses bears, foxes, moose, deer, otters, minks, sables, musquash, hares, racoons and squirrels. Among feathered game are woodcocks, snipes, plovers, partridges, geese, ducks, brants, curlews, etc. The manufactures embrace coarse cloths, flannels, bed-linen, blankets, carpets, tweeds, boots and shoes, saddlery, agricultural implements, machinery, gunpowder, furniture, tobacco, etc. Shipbuilding forms an extensive industry, and tanning is also carried on to some extent. The province is administered by a Lieutenant Governor, aided by an Executive Council, a Legislative Council of 21 members, and a Legislative Assembly of 38 members, elected every four years. Education is not compulsory, but it is free to all classes, and it is now pretty widely and equally diffused. Nova Scotia has a population made up of various religious denominations. In 1881 the members of the principal were:—Roman Catholics, 117,487; Presbyterians, 112,488; Baptists, 83,761; Episcopalians, 60,255, and Methodists, 50,811. Nova Scotia was discovered in 1498 by Sebastian Cabot, and was first settled by De Monts and his followers in 1604. It was taken by the English in 1654, but was ceded to France in 1667. It finally came into British possession in 1711. In 1763 Cape Breton was annexed and in 1784 New Brunswick was created. Nova Scotia joined the Dominion in 1867.

Halifax. The capital and leading city of the province, and the chief naval and military station of the Dominion, is situated on one of the finest harbors in the world, being capable of taking in vessels of the deepest draught; a little above the city the water widens into a fine sheet of water known as Bedford Basin, which affords good anchorage and a safe shelter from all storms, being completely shut in from the sea. Halifax is well looked after in the way of fortifications, being protected by a citadel and forts and masked batteries in all commanding positions. It has excellent shipping facilities; the Intercolonial Railway giving it daily communication with St. John, Montreal and all western Canadian points, the Windsor & Annapolis Railway connecting it with Windsor, Kentville and all points in the s-w part of the peninsula, and the different steamship lines connecting it periodically with Liverpool and all European ports, St. John's, Nfld, New York, Boston, Montreal, St. John and all coast points. It contains Epis, Meth, Bap, Pres, Cong and Cath churches, public schools, foundries, grist, saw and woolen mills, machine shops, dockyards and other large manufactories, and does a large ship-building business. Pop, 40,000. Tel, GNW and CPR. Exp, Can and Dom. Mail daily. Hugh W Blackadar, p m.

DESCRIPTIVE OF PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND, the smallest province of the Dominion, lies in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, between lat. 46° and 47° N., and long. 62° and 64° 30′ W. It is separated from Nova Scotia and New Brunswick by the Strait of Northumberland, and is deeply indented by large bays and inlets. Length 150 mls., by 4 to 34 mls. greatest breadth. Area 2,133 sq. mls. Pop. (1881) 108,891; 1886 (estimated) 117,301. Cap. Charlottetown. The surface is gently undulating, but nowhere exceeds 500 feet in elevation. A considerable area is forest-clad. The soil for the most part consists of a rich layer of vegetable matter, above a bright loam resting upon a stiff clay and sandstone, and is eminently favorable for the growth of grasses, wheat, oats, barley, potatoes, turnips, etc. In the bays and rivers an excellent manure is obtainable, consisting of mussel mud (formed by decayed oyster, clam, and mussel shells), which possesses great fertilizing qualities. The inhabitants are chiefly engaged in agriculture and the breeding of horses and sheep, but considerable attention is also paid to the fisheries, the total value of which for 1887 was $1,037,426. No minerals of any consequence are found in the province. The industries of the island have rapidly developed of late, and there are now several butter, cheese, starch and soap factories, tanneries, grist, saw and woolen mills, factories for canning and preserving meat and fish, carriage factories, etc. The province, which is well watered, is divided into three counties, viz., King's, Queen's and Prince, and the chief towns, besides Charlottetown the capital, are Georgetown, Summerside, Alberton, and Souris. There are few localities in the whole of North America so admirably adapted for salt sea fishing as Prince Edward Island, and this branch of industry constitutes an important element of her wealth. Almost every kind of fish abound, but especially cod and mackerel; the amount of these annually taken is enormous. The cod are dried and pressed and sent to South America and the southern lands of Europe, where the consumption of them among the Roman Catholic population is very large. Off Prince Edward Island there are capital beds of an oyster, smaller than that procured further south, in fact some of the finest varieties in the world are dredged in these waters. The value of the fisheries of the island is computed at between one and one and a half million dollars annually. There is one railway on the island, the property of the Dominion Government, by whom it is worked, 198½ miles long. There is also a submarine telegraph between the island and New Brunswick. Steamers ply between the ports of the island and those of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and the United States. Those who seek a pleasant land, with pure air and beautiful climate, should visit this island. To the sportsman it also offers every inducement; all kinds of wild fowl are found along the shores, and woodcock and plover are to be shot at the proper season, while the best of fishing can everywhere be secured. All the pleasures of the sea side may be here enjoyed, with freedom from fog and flies and numerous other evils, which are sometimes found upon the mainland. The people of the island are generally prosperous and well-to-do, and all branches of trade and industry grow and flourish, a large business being done in shipbuilding. The climate is extremely healthy, but is colder in winter and warmer in summer than in Britain. Prince Edward Island was formerly known as St John's Island, and was amongst Cabot's early discoveries. It belonged originally to the French, but was taken by the British in 1755, restored to France by the Treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle, but finally ceded to Great Britain in 1758. It received its present name in 1799, and was admitted into the Dominion in 1873. The Government is vested in a Lieutenant-Governor, aided by an Executive Council, a Legislative Council of 13 members, and a Legislative Assembly of 30 members.

Prince Edward Island was discovered on St. John's day, twenty-fourth of June, 1497, by the celebrated discoverer, Sebastian Cabot, who, indicative of the day, named it the Isle of St. John. Its length is one hundred and fifty miles, and width in the widest part is thirty-four miles, and it contains an area of two thousand one hundred and thirty-three square miles. It is separated from Nova Scotia and New Brunswick by the Straits of Northumberland, which, between Capes Traverse and Tormetine, is only nine mls wide. The island is deeply indented with bays and rivers, which afford short and safe communication betwixt many inland places. A magnificent growth of forest trees at one time waved over this province, and there still remains many shady groves of soft maple, graceful cedar, elegant elm, spruce, hemlock and all the varieties of wood peculiar to a Canadian forest.

By the treaty of Fontainebleau in 1763, the island was ceded by France to Great Britain, and placed under the government of Nova Scotia. A survey of the island and of all the British North American Provinces, ordered by the Imperial Government, was commenced in 1764, and finished in 1766. After this survey no doubt remained as to the fertility of the land. Previous to that, various plans were suggested as to the settlement of the colony. The most strenuous efforts were made by the Earl of Egmont, first Lord of the Admiralty, for a grant of the island, and to hold the same in fee of the the crown. He proposed to settle it on a feudal plan, and that he himself should be lord paramount of the whole island. His plans were set forth in an elaborate memorial to the king, and were backed by several communications addressed to the lords of trades and plantations, and signed by influential gentlemen distinguished for military and other services. The king referred the matter to the board of trade. In 1764 the board reported that the principles of the plan seemed adverse to the system of late years adopted in the settlement of the colonies, and that as his lordship's scheme was more calculated to answer the purpose of military and defence than of agriculture and commerce, they could not advise his majesty to comply with Lord Egmont's proposal. The island was afterwards divided into sixty-seven lots. These lots or townships, with the exception of a few reservations, were disposed of, by means of the ballot box, to parties having claims on the government upon certain conditions. Thus, on the 23rd of July, in the year 1767, was the island apportioned, with the exception of lot 66. About 6,000 acres were reserved for the crown, and lots 40 and 59 — which had already been promised to parties in consideration of having made improvements and established fisheries on the island.

In 1770, at the request of the proprietors, the Island was erected into a separate government, and Capt. Walter Patterson, one of the island grantees, was appointed Governor. At this time there were only 150 families and 5 proprietors living on the island. In 1773, the first Assembly was convened, and the first Act passed was one ratifying the proceedings of the governor-in-council from the 1st day of May, 1769, to the then session of the Assembly. One of the conditions on which the land was granted was, that the grantees should settle on each lot a settler for every 200 acres, and one-third of the land to be settled within 4 years. Three years had passed; hardly anything had been done to comply with these terms. Only a very few of the proprietors showed any zeal in doing their duty in this matter. To make gain with as little expense as possible seemed to be the great object of the most of these gentry. Governor Fanning succeeded Governor Patterson in 1787, and, being appointed through the influence of the proprietors, he was more disposed than Governor Patterson to favor their interests. He caused a bill to be passed the first session of the Assembly held after his appointment, nullifying some sales of land made for non-fulfilment of terms in 1781. The bill, however, did not receive the royal assent. Under the direction of the Provincial Government an investigation was held in 1797, whereby it was found that 23 lots, embracing 458,580 acres, had not a single family settled upon them, and 18 lots, containing 363,000 acres, had only 84 families. At this time the whole population was estimated at 5,000. These facts led to an agitation for the escheat of the lands of those proprietors who had proved so utterly indifferent to the terms of settlement. The House of Assembly, sensible to the necessity of the more effectual settlement of the island, petitioned the Home Government, praying that measures be taken to compel the landlords to do their duty, or that their lands be granted to actual settlers. The petition was forwarded to the Duke of Portland, who commended the resolutions; but so powerful was the influence of the proprietors with the Home Government, that they not only succeeded in preventing the petition from leading to any practical result, but also succeeded in obtaining (1802) a reduction in the quit rents, which, by the condition of settlement, they were obliged to pay the government, and which now had fallen into arrears amounting to nearly £59,000 sterling.

The inconvenience arising from the island bearing the same designation as the capitals of Newfoundland and New Brunswick, it was deemed expedient to give the colony a new name. In 1798 an Act was introduced in and passed by the Local Legislature, which changed the name to Prince Edward Island, and received the royal sanction the following year. The change took effect from the commencement of 1800. This name was given as a mark of gratitude to the Duke of Kent, father of Queen Victoria, and Commander-in-Chief of the forces of British North America, who took a practical interest in the welfare of the island. Although the reduction of the quit rents failed as an inducement to many of the proprietors to pay what was really due the government, it enabled them more easily to obtain purchasers for their estates, so that from the commutation to the year 1806 nearly a third of the island was transferred by purchase to persons, many of whom were desirous, by industry, to make the venture a profitable one. Notwithstanding the large reductions made in the arrears of quit rents by the crown, the landlords seemed in no way desirous of fulfilling their obligations regarding the payment. In 1803 the island Assembly passed an Act authorizing the establishment of a Court of Escheat on the island, with a view of having the estates of non-paying proprietors reverted to the crown. The bill was sent to the Home Government for approval. There was no session of the Assembly in 1804, and no information was as yet received regarding the fate of the bill.

In 1803 the Earl of Selkirk brought out and settled on his property, north and south of Point Prim, eight hundred Highlanders, who, by industry and perseverance, became comfortable and prosperous farmers. With this exception Governor Fanning's eighteen years' administration, which terminated in 1805, was no way remarkable for the progress or advancement of the interests of the island.

Colonel Joseph F. W. DesBarres in July, 1805, succeeded Governor Fanning. He was well advanced in life, and was for some time previously Governor of Cape Breton, when that island was a separate colony. Shortly after his arrival he received official intimation that the bill passed by the Local Assembly in 1803, regarding the Court of Escheat, was disallowed. During his eight years of office, public affairs seems to be conducted with calmness. He gave no evidence of the tyrannical disposition which characterized his successor Charles Douglas Smith, who succeeded him in 1813. War was then raging between England and the United States, and Governor Smith's earliest attention was given to forming companies of militia for defence of the province. The Assembly met in November, 1813, but, as it did not accord with his notions of propriety, he thought proper to prorogue the House in January, not again convening it until July, 1817, and then, taking offence at some of the proceedings during the session, he dissolved the House, with a view of returning an Assembly more in accordance with his own views. The new House, on being convened, proved as refractory as the former one. In a fit of passion he dissolved it. His action on subsequent occasions goes to show him to have been an erratic, if not an autocratical ruler.

On the 26th of July, 1823, the Prince Edward Island Register, the first island newspaper made its appearance, edited and published by Mr. James Douglas Haszard. It referred in severe terms to some of the recent actions of the Governor, and charged him with stretching the prerogatives of his office far beyond their legitimate limits, more especially in his capacity of Judge in the Court of Chancery. For these publications he was called before the court, with the Governor, against whom the alleged offence was committed, as judge. He was charged wtth contempt of court. But on Mr. Haszard disclosing the authors of the articles complained of, he was dismissed after a solemn admonition that when about to publish anything again, to beware and keep clear of a chancellor. The chancellor's rule, however, was drawing to a close. In the following October he was succeeded by Colonel Ready, who arrived in a brig from Bristol. It is not our intention, however, to dwell on the earlier history of the country. The land question for years was a cause of agitation and discontent on the island. All that is now happily settled. In 1875 the local government passed an act by which the lands were purchased from the proprietors, in order that the tenants, by easy terms, would become owners of the soil they had redeemed from the forest, consequently a very healthy impetus was given to the farmers and prosperity of the island.

The soil on the island is strong and rich, and for a long time, if attention is paid to rotation, good crops can be obtained with but little manure. The soil is particularly adapted for wheat, oats and potatoes. There are many peat bogs said to be of excellent quality, and may some day afford good fuel. The union of P. E. Island with the Dominion of Canada took place on the 1st of July, 1873, since which time the progress of the Island has been rapid, and the export trade more than doubled.

The population at the last census (1881) was 108,891, which is supposed to have increased to 111,000.

To those who like to spend their summer months in a sequestered spot, undisturbed by the roar and rush and demands of fashion, at the big resorts of pleasure, Prince Edward Island has peculiar charms. Its cultivated farms and the rolling sea that breaks upon its white downs, and its long reach of magnificent shores are beginning to attract American visitors, and yearly the travel to its silvery strands is increasing. Those who have summered in Prince Edward Island speak in glowing terms of its green hills, and pleasant vales. Surf bathing, boating, fishing and shooting, are among the enjoyments that are here offered. Hardly a square mile but affords a view of the sea with its invigorating breeze. Hardly a parish but can afford excellent fishing or shooting. Hardly a mile of its shore but offers tempting sea bathing. The drives from Charlottetown, the capital, to the sea shores, to the salmon and trout streams with which the Island abounds, offer abundant enjoyment in themselves, attractions that cannot be lightly esteemed by parties on a summer vacation.

The island is not deficient in good accommodation. There are many fine seaside hotels, plenty of comfortable country hotels and summer boarding houses, affording a pleasant haven during the summer months. For pure air, beauty of scenery and general appearance of comfort and independence of its people, the island is without a rival. The carefully cultivated farms, the neat and comfortable houses, the well kept orchards and shady groves, the churches, schools, stores and post offices, all betoken a thrifty and prosperous people. There are very few who have spent the summer months in this province, who do not again return to their favorite haunts by its shores, verdant fields and shady groves. Its fair bays with wooded islands offer rich duck shooting at certain times, while plover and other small game are plentiful in their season. There are splendid sheets of water for boat sailing, and dark pools overhung by shadowing trees, or ripples of miniature waterfalls afford unfailing sport to the lover of the rod and reel. In a few of the watering places, such as Malpeque, Rustico and Souris, it is a pleasant sight to behold the fishing fleet in the harbor, as the tall masts grow dim and the island fades from sight in the twilight that steals over land and water. It is also a fine scene to observe them again getting under way and sailing out to sea as the sun sparkles on the rippling waves and snowy sails. In these parts are unlimited recreation for all who care to enjoy cod or mackerel fishing and excellent spots for surf bathing around the sandy shores.

On approaching the island from the sea, it appears comparatively level, but many parts round the coast are steep, rising to an elevation of five hundred feet. Nearing the shores the voyager beholds impos'ng and picturesque scenery. The verdant slopes, luxuriously waving grain fields, handsome cottages and fair rural seats command a beautiful prospect of well cleared and highly cultivated land.

DESCRIPTIVE OF QUEBEC.

QUEBEC (formerly Lower Canada or Canada East), the oldest province of the Dominion, is bounded N. by Labrador, W. by Ontario, S.-W. by the River Ottawa, S. by New York, New England States and New Brunswick, and E. by the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Length from the Ottawa to Strait of Belle Isle about 1,000 miles, breadth about 300 miles. Area of census districts 188,688 sq. miles, or including the water areas 193,355 sq. miles. Population (1881) 1,359,927, of whom 86·14 per cent. are Catholics and 79·11 per cent. are of French origin. The surface of the province is characterised by great rivers and lakes, with vast forest lands, diversified in the settled parts by well cultivated fields and rich pastures. The principal mountain ranges are the Notre Dame chain, running parallel with the St. Lawrence on its south side, and the Laurantide range on the north side, with an average elevation of 1,600 feet and stretching from Labrador to Lake Superior. Besides the St. Lawrence, which traverses the entire length of the province, and its great affluent the Ottawa which divides the province from Ontario, there are numerous other rivers and smaller streams. Chief among them are the Richelieu, rising in Lake Champlain and flowing 80 miles to the south side of the St. Lawrence, thus all but connecting that river with the Hudson; the St. Francis 100 miles long, and the Chaudiere 102 miles long, falling into the St. Lawrence on the right, and the St. Maurice 400 miles long, the Saguenay 100 miles long and the Batiscan 50 miles long, are tributaries on the left side. The soil in general is extremely rich, and susceptible of the highest cultivation. Among the agricultural products and fruits grown are wheat, barley, rye, peas and beans, buckwheat, Indian corn, oats, potatoes, turnips, grass and clover seed, hay, hemp, flax, tobacco, tomatoes, grapes, etc. The rich pastures of the hillsides and the abundant streams of pure water, make the province suitable for dairy farming, and excellent cheese and butter are made. Quebec is also rich in minerals. In the Beauce district and elsewhere, gold is found, and copper abounds in the eastern townships, while iron has been worked in the St. Maurice district. Among the other minerals are lead, silver, platinum, zinc, phosphate of lime, etc. The lumber trade still forms the most important industry of the province. The exports of timber in 1886 amounted to $9,603,441, and the Government have found it necessary to take steps for the preservation and replanting of forests, and an annual "arbor day" is now devoted to this work. The varieties of timber include white and red pine, ash, birch, beech, elm, hickory, black walnut, cherry, maple, spruce, fir etc. The climate is similar to that of Ontario, but is colder in winter and warmer in summer. Observations taken at Montreal during 1882 showed that the mean temperature during January, the coldest month, was 12·2°, against 68·3°, during September, the hottest month. The mean temperature for the whole year was 41·58°; the mean barometrical reading 30·01 inches the total rainfall, 27 inches; and the total snowfall, 111·02 inches. The school system of Quebec is under the Superintendent of Public Instruction, aided by a Council, divided into two committees for the government of Roman Catholic and Protestant schools respectively. Primary education is supported partly by a government grant, and partly by taxation and a small monthly contribution from heads of families for each child capable of attending school. Of the three universities two are Protestant, viz., McGill College and Bishop's College, and one Roman Catholic, viz., Laval University. There are three Normal schools, maintained by the state, for the training of teachers; 300 Secondary and Model schools, with about 40,000 pupils; and 4,000 primary schools, with about 200,000 pupils. There are numerous churches throughout the province, the prevailing religion of which is Roman Catholic. Judicial procedure and the duties of coroners are generally analogous to those in force in England. Besides Quebec, the capital, the other chief places are Montreal, Levis, Sherbrooke, Hull, St. Henri, St. Jean Baptiste, Sorel and St. Hyacinthe. The manufactures include cloth, linen, leather, furniture, flax, hardware, paper, chemicals, soap, boots and shoes, agricultural implements, steam engines, ships, etc. Exports pot and pearl ashes, flour, wheat, oats, barley, butter, cheese, copper, wool and lumber. Total imports, (1887), $50,153,673; exports, $39,933,146. Trade is facilitated by an admirable system of railways and canals. The administration is vested in a Lieutenant-Governor, assisted by a Legislative Council of 24 members appointed for life, and a Legislative Assembly of 65 members, elected every five years. The first European settlement of Quebec was formed by Cartier in 1541, and the country remained in the possession of the French up to the year 1759, when it came into British hands. It formerly included the present Province of Ontario, and in 1792 was divided into Upper and Lower Canada, but was reunited again in 1840. The United Provinces were finally separated in 1867, and formed into the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec.

Montreal. The commercial metropolis of the Dominion of Canada is situated on an island of the same name at the junction of the Ottawa and St Lawrence rivers at the head of ocean navigation, in Hochelaga Co, about 300 mls above salt water, and is the beginning of the fresh water navigation of the great rivers and lakes extending to Duluth, Minn. U.S.A., at the head of Lake Superior, a distance of 1,500 mls. The city was founded in 1642. It is the principal port of entry in the Dominion, and is accessible to craft of 3,000 tons burden. It was incorporated a city in 1833, it has some magnificent public buildings and contains more ecclesiastical, educational and charitable institutions than any other city of its size on the continent. The Notre Dame Cathedral is noted for its size and architecture and has a seating capacity of 15,000, and has a chime of eleven bells, the "Gros Bourdon" being one of the five largest bells in the world. It is 145 mls by water and 170 mls by rail s-w of Quebec, 620 mls from the sea and 420 mls n of New York. Latitude 45° 31′ N, longitude 73° 34′ W. The city is built upon a series of gentle sloping terraces, running inland from the St Lawrence for a distance of 2 mls, and culminating in the beautiful elevation called Mount Royal, nearly 700 ft above the level of the river, which is here about 2 mls broad. Most of the buildings are built of limestone, obtained from quarries in the neighborhood and are roofed with tin or sheet-iron, which, along with its numerous spires and towers, gives the city an imposing appearance when seen from a distance. Some of the streets in the lower part of the town are narrow, ill-paved, and dingy in appearance, but in the upper part they are broad and spacious, and contain many well-built edifices. The principal public buildings are the Custom House, Post Office, City Hall, Convent of Notre Dame, Seminary of St Sulpice, the Hotel Dieu, Nelson's Monument, the Quebec Barracks, General Hospital, Grey Nunnery, Bonsecour's Market, Academy of Music, Queen's Hall, Theatre Royal, Victoria Skating Rink, Crystal Palace, etc. The educational interests of the city are represented by McGill University, Montreal College, St. Mary's College, besides numerous other academies and schools. Montreal contains numerous churches, many of them being very handsome structures; among them are Christ Church Cathedral, the Church of the Gesu, Notre Dame Church, St Peter's, Trinity, St George, StAndrew, and St Paul churches, etc. The harbor, which is formed towards the river, is spacious and secure; and the wharfs, with the revetment wall, have not their equal on the American continent. The industries of Montreal include iron-founding, distilling, brewing, sugar-refining, and the manufactures embrace hardware and woodenware, glass, paints, drugs, carriages, edge tools, steam engines, locomotives, boilers, machinery, paper, types, woolen, cotton and leather goods, etc. The transit trade of Montreal is also very large. At Point St Charles, one of the western suburbs, are situated the head offices and works of the Grand Trunk Railway, which connects the Canadian and United States lines. Here the Victoria Bridge, 9,184 ft in length, a massive but graceful structure, spans the St Lawrence; it was opened in 1859, and cost nearly $7,000,000. Montreal was first visited, and received its present name from Jacques Cartier in 1535; and was settled by Europeans in 1642. It came into the hands of the British in 1760. The city returns 3 members to the House of Commons, and 3 to the Provincial Legislature. The harbor is among the best equipped in the world, having a frontage of 4 mls of unbroken line of wharfs built of massive cut stone. The railroad facilities are extensive, and, with the ocean and river navigation, provide direct communication with all parts of the continent. The general offices of the Grand Trunk Railway and Canadian Pacific Railway are located here. Assessed valuation of real property, $120,000,000; realty, exempt from taxation, $20,000,000; funded debt, $15,000,000. Exp, Dom, Can and U S. Tel, GNW, CPR and CM. Pop, 275,000.
